Dear Hermes member,

I would like to warmly welcome you to this year's Hermes AGM & Leaders Forum. The 2022 event takes place in Brussels at the EUROCONTROL Headquarters, thanks to EUROCONTROL and our VP, Eamonn Brennan.

After two challenging years, air transportation is gradually getting back to normal. The new reality is inextricably linked to the sustainable development of our sector. Therefore, this year's Hermes recommendations and Leaders Forum are focusing on the Sustainability of the Aviation Industry.

Developing short term solutions for the aviation industry is a heavy lift, given its sunk infrastructure, the need for thorough attention to safety, and the time required to effectively implement aviation technology. Going beyond "quick fixes" Hermes wishes to explore what the aviation industry should do over the next five years to ensure a sustainable long run future.

Hermes always contributes to the development, progress and promotion of air transport at a global level. The leaders of air transport are gathering during the event to discuss all critical issues that will allow aviation to move forward in a sustainable way.

2022 HERMES AGM & LEADERS FORUM

Sustainability of the Aviation Industry

In November 2021, ICAO released the first edition of its publication, Innovation Driving Sustainable Aviation. The publication highlighted work on the development of aircraft technologies, the improvement of aviation operations and infrastructure, and the development of environmentally friendly fuels.

The goal of ICAO and the ICAO Global Coalition on Sustainable Aviation is to ensure a sustainable future for the industry. As a result, the thrust of most of the publication is on "the feasibility of a long term global aspirational goal for international aviation (LTAG)." However, as John Maynard Keynes, the eminent British economist, is reputed to have stated, "In the long run, we are all dead." The thrust of this statement implies that if we cannot move quickly to solve short term issues, the long run no longer matters.

With Keynes' thoughts in mind, Hermes wishes to propose how best to ensure the development of "quick fixes". What can the aviation industry do over the next five years to ensure a sustainable long run future? Developing short term solutions for the aviation industry is a heavy lift, given its fixed infrastructure, attention to safety, and the long time to market for aviation technology. However, quick fixes will certainly be needed given aviation's "bad press" and the movement to stifle the industry after the impact of COVID-19.
